Seminar: October 27-28, 2018

Certification Exam: October 29, 2018

Location: Harrah's Las Vegas / Las Vegas, NV

Target Audience

Physicians, fellows, residents, students, physician assistants, and nurses in both academic and private practice who are involved in the newly evolving sports medicine subspecialty of Ringside Medicine. Others who may benefit include athletic trainers, athletes, referees, and state commissioners.

Objectives

At the conclusion of this activity, participants should be better able to:

1. Describe the mechanism of acute and chronic brain injuries, their patho-physiology, diagnosis, and treatment. List the classifications of mild, moderate, and severe TBI and the likelihood of structural damage with each type of TBI.
2. List the current findings of the "Professional Fighters Brain Health Study," and describe the Fighter Exposure Score.
3. Describe the difference between structural and functional neuroimaging techniques and how to apply them in combative sports. The ringside physician will be able to list the most common findings in fighters on neuroimaging studies.
4. Define HTN in athletes, and list guidelines in blood pressure that will allow an athlete to compete or to be disqualified. If athletes are diagnosed with HTN, be able to determine if it is adequately treated.
5. List the causes of post-bout hematuria, and be able to prescribe the appropriate medical work-up for the athlete.
6. List the minimum medical equipment a ringside physician should have at an event.
7. Describe the most common injuries to the hands and wrists in fighters, their diagnosis, and treatment.
8. List the medical supervision that is required in Taiwan, and describe the similarities and differences between Taiwan and the United States.
9. Be interviewed by media personnel and not violate HIPAA regulations.
10. List the differences in pre- and post-bout physicals for men and women.
11. Describe the influence of glove size on punch dynamics.
12. Know the need to purchase malpractice insurance, and know when one is covered by the commission.
13. Recognize and diagnose skin lesions in athletes, and know whether to allow the athlete to compete or be disqualified.
14. List the pre-bout tests for blood-borne pathogens and know how to interpret these tests.
15. Describe the fundamentals of the UFC's Performance Institute in optimizing the fighter's readiness to compete.

Registration for Certification Exam

The American College of Sports Medicine in collaboration with the Association for Ringside Physicians has developed the ARP/ACSM Certified Ringside Physician (CRP) certification. A CRP is experienced in ringside protocol and is instrumental in the care before, during, and after the bout. The CRP has a basic understanding in various fields of medicine, which include but are not limited to wound care, orthopaedics, neurology, cardiology, dermatology, infectious disease, emergency medicine, and even psychology.

The exam will be given at the conclusion of the conference, beginning at 8:00 a.m. Monday, October 29, 2018. Separate registration is required for the exam. To preregister, visit the Ringside Physicians website and either register online or download and mail the registration application. Materials can be found at: <http://ringsidearp.org/Certification>.

Criteria necessary for certification in addition to passing exam:

- MD or DO degree or a foreign medical degree equivalent.
- Must have provided ringside event coverage for a minimum of three professional cards with at minimum 15 total fights or five amateur cards with a minimum of 30 total fights.
- Must be licensed and be in good standing with the licensing body authority, (i.e. state, country) in which they are a ringside physician for a minimum of two years. This includes being up to date on required CME by their licensing body authority.
- Must provide two forms of recommendation from the following sources: state/country athletic board commissioner, local boxing committee, or another ringside physician. Please use the forms provided on the ARP/ACSM website.
- If applicable, must be board certified in a primary medical specialty (e.g., Family Medicine, Emergency Medicine, Orthopaedics, etc.).

Candidates may sit for the exam before submitting above criteria, but scores and certification will NOT be issued until proper documentation has been submitted to the ARP
